

JERMAINE BARNABY/PHOTOGRAPHER

Rose Miller (left), grant manager, JNBS Foundation, hands over computer equipment to Beverley Lopez (second left), chairman of the Stella Maris Foundation, and students Tiffany Smith (second right) and Shauna-Kay Scott at Grants Pen Road on Wednesday, June 25.

JNBS raises money for health, education

CONTRIBUTED PHOTOS

Ann-Marie Kirlew Williams (right), communications officer and team leader for Relay for Life at Jamaica National Building Society (JNBS), explains JN Group's participation to Dr Steven Lofters (left), consultant radiologist at the Diagnostic X-ray and Ultrasound Consultants, and Earl Jarrett, general manager of JNBS and chairman of the Jamaica Cancer Society. The JN Group promoted awareness around thyroid cancer at the event.

Ann-Marie Kirlew Williams (left), communications officer and team leader for Relay for Life at Jamaica National Building Society (JNBS), presents a gift to Taynia Nethersole, three-year thyroid cancer survivor who shared her story at the Relay for Life event which was recently held at the Police Officers' Club in St Andrew. JNBS raised more than $1 million for the Jamaica Cancer Society.